

The ultimate pluto-imperialist fault in Iran

The USA and Israel attacked Iran militarily on February 28, 2026, in aberrant conditions, notably with, despite appearances, insufficient means (military, economic, and socio-political) and a tinkered and counter-productive strategy, to try to psychologically terrorize the rest of the world one last time, by looting resources here and there, before their collapse under the weight of their own flaws.

For this, the so-called ruling "elites" of these two villainously associated nations took the risk of an open war, yet unwinnable for them from the start, by self-persuading that, whatever happens, obscure biblical prophecies would miraculously be fulfilled in the nick of time in their favor. To be able to continue their lucrative terrorism to the end, these arrogant mafia "elites" have therefore engaged in a conflict that has become quasi-existential for all the involved parties, speculating on a religious imaginary of another age, in spite of the geopolitical and military realities of the present time.

But three weeks after the outbreak of hostilities, realities nevertheless prevailed, and the imperialist Judeo-Christian mafiosi inevitably found themselves forced to a serious failure and defeat, without their own traditional socio-political forces can exercise a corrective opposition in time. Because the internal regulatory mechanisms that could have prevented these drifts no longer allowed it: parliamentarians, financiers, and large Western industrialists had become mostly (and very handsomely) beneficiaries of the predatory imperialist conflicts created by their political elites -official and/or occult- who now consider that the only possible option to avoid their collapse is a flight forward, always further and stronger, going as far as the unscrupulous use of their atomic arsenal.

Which implies their own destruction in retaliation (preventive or consecutive), with vital consequences for the future of almost all of Humanity, but this did not seem to stop them, to the point of considering destroying the holy places of Islam such as the Al Aqsa Mosque in Jerusalem or Mecca, to cause maximum chaos with the Muslim world, up to a generalized apocalyptic war.

Whatever happens, and whether they collapse with or without violence, their predatory balance sheet is already irredeemably catastrophic, confirming under the eyes of the whole world the profoundly anti-human nature of Western Judeo-Christian plutoimperialism, and the absurdity of its last chance actions, as stupidly cruel as counterproductive, to the point of benefiting finally their opponents.

Because after the strong retaliation by Iran, the indirect geopolitical result of the operation is clearly a strengthening of Russia's and its allies position and means, especially China, the main systemic adversary of this destructive plutoimperialism.

Unfortunately, the operation also causes damage that many nations not directly involved will have to bear.

Indeed, the blockage of maritime routes located in combat zones (especially the Strait of Hormuz) prevents also the supply of non-belligerent nations in energy products (oil and gas) and their supply with other important products, such as fertilizers, threatening the basic food security of at least half of Humanity.

This because the Iranians had to destroy not only the US and Israeli military bases in the region, but also the industrial infrastructure of the wealthy regional oil monarchies who were willingly or unwillingly helping the aggressors, even if their structures provided elsewhere essential raw materials.

Despite these drawbacks, a major success has been achieved: the multifaceted Iranian counterattack, strategically supported by China and Russia, has strongly impacted and cracked the monopolistic global financial system abusively constructed around the US dollar (with particularly its avatar the petrodollar) without which the USA can no longer rule the world economy as they see fit, and enrich themselves at the expense of the rest of Humanity, for the final benefit of the Western imperialist plutocracy.

Iran has indeed dealt a very hard blow to the US dollar, by requiring all its customers, and all carriers traveling through the Strait of Hormuz, to now prove that they have paid for their products in Chinese Yuan, to be allowed to circulate on Iranian territory and in the war zone. Some ships passed with authorization, but to date, more than 3000 large unauthorized ships have been blocked in Ormuz, without bunkering or care for their crews and at the risk of an environmental disaster.

This anti-dollar initiative is however judicious, since the Chinese currency (Yuan) relies on the credibility of a nation which has become economically and socially powerful and well managed, which is neither corroded by one or the other of the Abrahamic religions, nor by a destructive parasitic plutoimperialism. Its reliability is solid.

This exemplary societal model has cleverly combined Marxism and Confucianism (two notable references of eco-humanism) in the service of a community of one billion and a half human beings. And this without weakness. Because, in accordance with its multifactorial program of "Global National Security" of 2014, China carried out a large-scale preventive general mobilization.

Without ostensible provocation, this country has been able to redeploy, relocate, and preemptively reorganize all its essential resources, military and civilian, so that it can coordinate them reactively in a war situation whenever necessary, and thus survive with a minimum of damage to a great conflagration (considered very likely), its survival being moreover an important factor in a more legitimate and better balanced world reconstruction.

All this therefore brings us once again to what I wrote a few years ago on various distribution media :

"The collapse of the USA will continue until this former hegemonic empire is reduced to a ruined mere regional power. But before getting there, will its leaders prefer a collective suicide in one or more wars (internal and/or external), which will finish the country anyway? We will probably have the answer soon. (4-11-2020) "

"The Russians and their allies will if necessary have to strike powerfully in first to protect themselves, ridding all the more radically the world of the plouto-imperialist dystopia. The bets therefore remain open for an internal systemic collapse, with or without an external coup de grâce. (21-09-2021)".

To be continued. Stay mobilized.
